Badger Watch

Making the UW
Campus a safer place to Live,
Work, and Learn

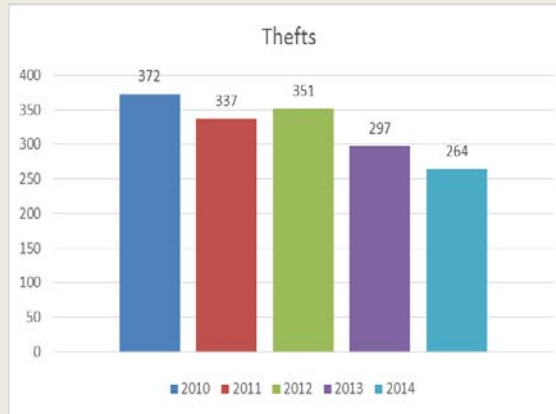

Badger Watch

Badger Watch is the crime prevention program for the UW-Madison Campus. It's a collaborative effort between over 4,000 volunteers and the UW Police Department to help make the community a safer place.

Becoming a volunteer is easy and only involves attending the initial training with no further commitment required. The benefits include becoming a smarter/safer community member, a direct link to the UW Police Community Officers, and the opportunity to attend events such as our Annual Safety Conference, CPR, and other training.

Benefits to the Community

- Reduction in Thefts
- Safety Awareness
- Improved Safety Perception
- Deterrent for Thieves
- Direct Link to UW Police

Benefits to the Police

- Increased Crime Reporting
- Partnership with Community
- Reduction of Thefts
- Reduction of Crime Rate
- Improved Public Relations

Becoming a Volunteer is EASY

Training sessions are offered year round, and can be scheduled in your building, and can be coordinated through your facility management or department, or a UW Police Community Officer.

Call your facility or department manager, or your community officer to arrange on-site training.

OR

Contact one of the Badger Watch Coordinators to learn more about the program and to hear how you can attend an upcoming campus wide training session. You may attend a training, even if your building does not wish to participate. Please see reverse side for contact information.
